

RICHARD M. WILLIAMS, ESQ.

Richard Williams' current mediation practice follows a 49-year career as a litigator, representing plaintiffs and defendants handling matters in the private and public sector. As a mediator for the last 20 years, Richard has mediated hundreds of cases involving complex issues in areas of employment, harassment and discrimination, catastrophic personal injury and wrongful death, clergy and elder abuse, medical and legal malpractice, real estate, and technology disputes. As a former high school football and baseball coach, he particularly enjoys resolving sports injury and other school district liability claims.

Richard sits on mediation court panels in Santa Clara, San Mateo and San Francisco counties, and has mediated cases for the First, Second and Sixth District Courts of Appeal. He has extensive training from the Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution at Pepperdine University School of Law, as well as through the Sixth District Court of Appeal

During his three-decade tenure as a senior partner in a large Northern California litigation firm, Richard developed expertise in class action litigation and was appointed lead defense counsel in the first of a wave of class actions against the funeral industry in the 1990s. (In Re Fremont Cremation Cases) He also served as lead defense trial counsel in the only cremation class action tried in San Francisco Superior Court before the Honorable Carlos Bea. (Hansell v. Pleasant Hill Cemetery) He continues to resolve disputes for business entities in the cemetery and funeral industry, and is the president of the board of directors of a well-known East Bay mortuary.
